Vinton Bayne says

I'm still loving this new Runaways series. I can feel it's building to something awesome and while this issue was a quiet, downtime moment, it was really nice. Even if I can feel imminent danger is just around the corner.

Jenette says

That image of Victor with one eye open as he eyes the cats surrounding him dubiously might just be my fave. Looking forward to seeing where this takes Gert and Molly what with the dubious under the stairs weirdness and the creepy cats.

Dina says

Loving this series!

Ria says

Incredibly charming! I forgot how sweet Molly is, I also love all the ominous teases for future plot threads. Looking forward to the next issue.

Patrick says

I wasn't sure how I felt about this one. I almost considered either a 2 or 3 star rating. Then I realized that I was rating some of the character decisions in the story and not the story itself.

Kind of speaks highly of the characters within, yeah?

Lori says

Best so far - I loved Molly's reintroduction and am excited to see where the (spoilers) story goes.

Brian Williams says

Been a Runaways fan since the beginning and enjoying the pace and approach this relaunch is taking.

Lauren says

Starting to bring that Classic Rainbow Rowell charm

This is finally starting to FEEL like a Rainbow Rowell story, without losing any of The Runaways spirit. It can be easy to see Gert as bitchy, but Rowell makes her easy to sympathise with in this issue.

Hayley says

I just don't know about this new series. Something seems a little- off?

Maria says

"You don't have to grandmother me. I'm not your problem."
"You're not anyone's problem. You're not a problem at all..."

There's obviously something developing in the background, hope we're allowed in soon.

Janey says
