"I was howling with laughter!" --Jeff Crosby

Do you dread sitting down with a book? We do, too. That's why we wrote this--a book for kids who don't like to read. If someone's bugging you to open a book, grab this one. Once you start flipping through the pages, you'll probably start laughing. Things always seem to go by faster when you're laughing. In this book, you'll find out how the Bacon brothers get through their 20-minute reading requirement without really reading. Tips range from practical (bathroom reading), to gross (bloody noses), to outrageous (man-eating monsters). You'll also learn what to do when someone makes you read on vacation and how to deal with the kids in your class who actually like to read. This book is full of easy words. And if you come across a word you don't know, you can just skip it. Really, you won't miss any of the good parts. We know, sitting down with any book, including this one, isn't the same as playing outside, or singing, or building a pillow fort, or even washing the car. But if you have to read, you may as well pick a book written by people who feel the same way you do. Try it. Pretty soon you may be surprised you've actually finished a book!

Whahahahaha! This is hilarious! The perfect book for kids who hate reading and would rather play outside. This book offers tips on how to trick your parents into thinking you are reading, when really you are just moving your eyeballs from side to side on the page. Such a funny book with almost no illustrations, but still colorful and clever.

What a great way to take the pressure off when a kid doesn't care for reading, and get them interested in reading again! This book is very sneaky about getting kids to read, because when you're laughing you will WANT to read.

The best thing about this book is that it gets you so interested in the witty stuff, that you don't realize you just read this whole book. And you wish there was more! By the time you have finished reading this, you might realize that you actually like reading!

Quick and funny.

That blank page in the middle through me, LOL I thought my tablet was malfunctioning. I'm getting this book for my granddaughter.

Share it with a young person that you know. 4*

Great to read to a class...might hit home for kids who hate reading!

Cinniman Schwartz says

Such a fun book for reluctant readers. Kind-of tricks them into reading and makes them smile while they are at it.

This was read and rated by my 9 year old son that hates reading. He found it pretty funny that the book was about fooling your teacher and parents by pretending to read or what excuses to use not to read. What kid doesn't want to find out ways to fool their parents to prove to themselves just how much smarter they are than the adults around them? It was a great book to "trick" him into reading it!

I love the fact that two creative children were able to make this book happen.

Ini buku kok lucu amat. Idealnya dibaca sebagai buku cetak dan buat anak-anak, tapi dibaca orang dewasa sebagai gratisan di Kindle pun nikmat :3

Confession: I only bought this because A) it was free on kindle, and B) it doesn't have great reviews. XD

"Eyes on book. Butt on chair. Move your eyes from side to side. Repeat for 20 minutes." This is the advice of two brother who are forced by their cruel parents to read 20 minutes a day. The book is divided into 'scenes' that add more to the frustration children feel when they're forced to 'read' for pleasure. I've seen too many students try to do this same thing. My students ultimately figure out what these two boys do: Pretend your book is a movie (right out of Jeffery Wilhelm), read easy books, and every once in awhile you'll find a book you like.

Kids, even big ones, will recognize their own behavior. Since I'm trying to educate for the future, maybe my students will remember this when they become parents themselves...to be wary of 'eyes on book, butt on chair.'
