Twelfth of Never N.R. Walker

Will Parkinson has been with Mark Gattison for five years and, in his words, there has never been a dull moment. Will has always been the serious one, the responsible one. Mark is the irresponsible man-child who loves nothing more than to make people smile.

But Will has an ache for something Mark won't give him.

Until he does.

Join Will, Mark, Carter, Isaac and Brady, Hannah and her family (and some other special guests for Christmas) and have yourself a Merry Twelfth of Never.

It was perfect! A sweet and heartwarming Christmas story!

It can't completely make up for the disappointment I felt after reading Blindside, but definitely makes it better. :)

Jane (PS) says

Delightful. These characters are all so sweet and special that just a quick glimpse into their lives leaves warm-fuzzies. (Doesn't hurt that I love dogs as well!)

Trisha Harrington says

At some point I will need to read the other Blind Faith books. I read this now because I heard a certain couple would appear. I'm glad I did. It was so nice!

Lyndy Ann ? says

This is a quick super sweet Christmas read with my four gorgeous guys from Boston and throw in a cute little puppy into the mix.

Say it with me now: "Awwwwwwwww!"

Pretty much nothin' beats a Christmas short that lets me revisit favourite characters from not one, but two of Nic Walker's wonderful series, includes talk of babies, blended families, puppies, and delicious holiday treats, and has butt sex (we must never forget the butt sex!).

I really like Max and Will so, of course, I like this follow up Christmas Novella.

We get a lot of updates and even some cross over from another series.

You can guess from the blurb what the plot is going to be about. It is very well done and a lovely holiday read for free!

Tami says

Was free, and I am only reviewing because it has one big no go for me. And that is the whole "I want kids, he doesn't".

This is a huge problem in real life partnerships. Here it was treated like a piece of fluff.

And the partner who said a clear and distinct "no" to children has to give in and do it, because the other partner wants it so badly.

This is bullshit.

Kids are NOT like a puppy.

Child care is hard work, having children cost a lot of money and it DOES CHANGE YOUR WHOLE LIFE.

This is not something to be flippant about.

I really hate when they do this in books - and I find it very insulting that people who don't want children in books get the "see the light and get on board already" treatment.

This is very disrespectful towards the partner who has a right to his own opinion.

And this neat "you will see your error and jump into adoption" is insulting to everyone who doesn't want children. Because it discounts people's opinion who truly do not wish to raise children. Believe it or not they have valid reasons.

So. Rant over..

By this time you might have noticed that this is something that hits close to home.

I hate this "need to reproduce" in all romances.

Moñada máxima. Ya sólo viendo la portada se hacen una idea...

Pero es que adoro, ADORO a Mark y a Will, juntos, por separado... Aaaaawww!! La Walker ya puede rebozarlos en almíbar y sepultarlos bajo tres toneladas de merengue que los quiero igual... Se me había olvidado cuánto me gusta esta pareja <3 <3 <3 <3

Cuatro inmerecidas estrellas desde el fondo de mi corazón, me ha encantado leerlo.

Debra says

A sweet holiday story. Nice to catch up with Mark, Will, Isaac and Carter. A few tears, lots of smiles and some very special guests as well. Thanks Nicole for the holiday treat and thanks to Will Parkinson for being so persistent about it.

Sugar cookies and puppies, and all that's right with the world! Three of my beloved Walker couples gather in Will and Mark's coffee shop on Christmas Eve. Joy and giggles!

~Mindy Lynn~ says

Short and sweet! Love these guys.

Bev says

Thanks Nic for this little freebie available from ARe. It basically brings us up-to-date with Mark (yay!) and Will...pfft (still think Mark is too good for you Will Parkinson)!! Colour me shocked (and extremely happy) when Matt, Kira and the kids turned up, woot!!....and then when a little chocolate bundle of fur (Hershey, the Labrador pup) made an appearance, I was a goner!! I just know Mark and Will are going to be brilliant, wonderful and fantabulous parents...eventually. 5 Happy Dancing stars.
