Non-Combatants (Andy Holt Naval Thrillers #2) Alexander Fullerton

The second in the gripping historical Andy Holt Naval Thrillers series Summer 1940: Andy Holt is second mate on the SS Barranquilla, sailing from the Clyde to Cuba. Though the outward journey may be perilous, it's the homeward trip where the real danger lies: U-boats prefer their victims deep-laden and full of cargo.

There have been heavy losses off Norway and Dunkirk – the vital priority is for escorting destroyers to counter the invasion threat. Odds are against any individual ship getting over 'the pond' and back. Which will not do. Because Holt must get back to Britain in time to marry his girlfriend Julia, before the baby is born...

Non-Combatants is the gripping sequel to Westbound, Warbound , and a perfect read for fans of Jack Higgins or Philip McCutchan.

Really good read

This book gives the reader a good perspective on what the early years of WW II was like for the merchant marine. These men were the only hope of England when the Kriegsmarine was trying to starve them into submission. I'm looking forward to the next book in the series.

Interesting book never, read about the merchant service At war in 1940s

This is a different part of the north Atlantic war , brings a whole new perspective on just sailing on and letting the Navy do the work however the sailors had their trials and troubles too
