Great Stories About God's Amazing Creatures

This was a great book filled with heartwarming stories about dogs. I was sad to come to the end of the book.

I love dogs and the stories that come along with dogs. We have a dog. Got her has a puppy about 12 years ago. She is border collie. She has a freckled face and tail that struts when she walks. She has taught me about devotion. Something that you need to learn by example and she has been that for me. She is totally devoted to my husband. She greets him with a bark and the wag of her tail and jumps all over him. She also watches him closely to make sure that if he needs anything, she will come to that need. Scratching under her chin, rubbing her tummy, those kind of needs. She makes my day just wanting to start the day with a rush down the stairs. It's like she is saying Rejoice The sun has come up, it's a new day. If I need a pick me up, I just say squirrel and she runs to the window to look for her friends that she loves to chase. We have gotten a few in the house that she has chased back up into the chimney where they have found there way in. She also is my helper in the kitchen. Very silent helper, that is waiting for me to drop any type of food onto the floor. If she is upstairs, she can still hear the food drop and come running down the stairs to help me. She is also very considerate of my husband me, she never wakes up with a park but a sigh. She has a loud sigh, or she will somehow fall to the ground with a thump. She loves to on car rides and walks. She loves to catch the frisbee and bring it back. She is not color blind because we have several different colored frisbees and by command she will bring the right color. Writing about my dog is what this collection of stories is all about. It shares the commitment of dog owner and dog and devotion that comes along with it. I think God uses dogs to teach by example of those values that we need for each other as humans.

Being a dog lover at heart, I always enjoy dog stories. This compilation both entertained and taught how many different ways dogs try to take care of their people. A real tribute to our canine friends.

Great book for anyone who has ever loved a dog. There is a bit of a christian theme which is OK for me, just might turn off some folks. Just sayin.

I am a cat person! I have had a few dogs in my life, but my preference is my cat! However, these stories were heartfelt and full of joy and tears. Animal stories are heartwarming.

An easy read that is filed with living stories about how dogs enrich our lives

An easy read that is filed with living stories about how dogs enrich our lives

if you are a dog lover, you will like this book. As I read the book my feelings about all the animals I have loved in my life came flooding to the surface. I have lost three animals in the last year but, I have so much love that I have new animals in my life. This book reminded me why I keep opening my heart to my furry friends. Because they are my family and I would do anything for them.

Furry Tears, Rough Tongues and Laughter

No one could read these stories without remembering tears that flowed as their own dogs licked tears and pain away with rough tongues and unconditional love. Add to that laughter which makes a heart sing. I have had such "friends" and "children". JBM

Anyone who is a dog lover, like me, will enjoy this book. It's filled with stories of dogs as they become part of a family, save lives, find the lost and brave danger. Parts are so sad it makes you cry, but in a good way because you know that dog and family had a wonderful life together. I thoroughly enjoyed it.
