A Dry Creek Courtship Janet Tronstad

A-courting he will go

Charley Nelson wants a change. He wants more than just breakfast and banter with longtime friend Edith Hargrove. Charley wants, well...he wants romance. Somehow, Mrs. Hargrove has gotten under his skin and into his heart. But the no-nonsense widow misunderstands when he confesses he'd like to settle down. How can he convince a woman set in her ways that change is good—especially if it means a future with him?

Dry Creek: The small Montana town with a heart as big as heaven.

Judy says

It was finally Edith Hargrove and Charlie Nelson's turn for a book.

Janet added an interesting twist from the past.

Another top notch book.

Although the grandson Ben was called Brad in this book.

Dakota says

loved it

Dee says

Two-haiku review:

An older widow
Knows her husband had cheated
Did he have daughter?

Christian acceptance
And an old couple romance
I liked their thinking

Melody says

I really should have read the Dry Creek books in some semblance of order! But no, I read one here and one there! And it's totally okay. I love this small town. Today I picked up the book with my beloved Mrs. Hargrove as the heroine. That made me so happy. She's a staple for the town, and now I finally know how her story played out!
Everyone deserves a happily ever after, no matter the age! So glad she got her own book for it!

Mary says

I read this book after some of the more recent ones, so it helped me to tie up loose ends in my mind! The widowed Mrs. Hargrove just couldn't imagine that her longtime friendship with Charlie would actually turn into a love relationship so she didn't see any of the signals he was sending. At the same time, Charlie didn't know a secret about Mrs. Hargroves's past marriage that might show him that she might love again. A lonely young lady drifts into town on a motorcycle and becomes a part of the family and of Dry Creek whether she is actually related or not. This is a good read of love, compassion, friendship, and restoration.

Karen says

Charley and Edith from Dry Creek have known each other for years. Both of their spouses have long since died and they are now moving on...

Linda says

A sweet love story.

Sparrow12 says

I have read several 'Dry Creek Books' in the past. I really enjoyed this one. It was a great read.

IrenesBookReviews says

Enjoyed the story. Will read this one again. Well written and easy to follow.

Gabrielle says

I really cute love story that can be read in an afternoon.

joyce lynn says

nice to see an older couple for once. nice to know that we're NOT "dead" once we pass a certain age.

and again, real people in this book, not people you can't relate to

Barbara says

This is Mrs. Hargrove's story, and it is a delightful one. How refreshing it was to read a romance with an older couple featured, and to see that Christians have often gone through some very tough times that have helped strengthen their faith. When faced with some very embarrassing news, openness and honesty are the path chosen, which is a great lesson for all of us, although a difficult one to act on.

Mary Baker says

This book reminded me of "The Miss Julia" books I have enjoyed for years. Readers can learn about forgiveness and love from Edith Hargrove, who is a character in other of this author's Dry Creek novels. I enjoyed a quiet, easy read that left me feeling optimistic about my world, and I actually chuckled in one part of the story.

Melissa says

When I read Small-Town Moms recently, I was pleasantly surprised by a secondary character named Mrs. Hargrove. She was the heroine's mentor and I liked her right away! Imagine my delight to find she had a book all to herself. Her story is very interesting, a little heart-breaking, but ultimately it's happy. In her letter to the reader, Janet wrote, "Renewed love doesn't have an age limit. It's not just for those people who are beautiful or drive elegant cars. Love can also come from some unexpected person." I love that! And Mrs. Hargrove's story is a story of renewed love. Her story is inspiring and I think it will resonate with readers.

Phylisha Stone says

A wonderful story about very mature love.
