Cabin Fever Marilyn Pappano

Take one gorgeous, down-on-his-luck man, add an irresistible, up-for-anything woman. Put them together in a smoldering little town--and watch the temperature rise.

Nolie Harper is starting over. And the bustling burg of Bethlehem is as far as the single mother can get from the gossipy one-horse town of Whiskey Creek, Arkansas. All set to claim the twin cabins she just inherited, Nolie discovers she already has a tenant: a scruffy, powerfully built stranger who makes it clear he wants to be left alone. Chase Wilson may be living like a recluse, but he's making her yearn for togetherness--and stirring up the kind of desires that can change a woman's whole outlook on life.

Newly sprung from prison for a crime he didn't commit, Chase is liking life alone in his rented cabin just fine. Until the redhead with the lush curves and her young daughter arrive and throw what's left of his life into maddening chaos. With her tantalizing neighborly ways, Nolie is slowly scorching her way into his guarded heart. And her passionate kind of healing is rapidly transforming his private hideaway into a lovers' retreat hot enough to ignite an entire town.

Tina says

Sherrill says

A charming book with an average sized female lead and of course, Mr. Charming as the male role. It held my interest, but did not captivate me into reading it too quickly.

Rachael Driggs says

I really enjoyed this one. It has been a while since I read it. But I remember not being able to put it down. Very good romance novel.

Diana Murphy says

Another fantastic read. My first book by the author. Widow Nolie and her 5 year old daughter move to another state to get away from overbearing, smothering parents of deceased husband. They befriend their mysterious neighbor "the boogeyman" hahahah next door. They meet a few "guardian angels" in their new quaint little town of Bethlehem. How do these women just always show up?! What a great story of new beginnings, kindness, surprise friendships and relationships, things aren't always as they seem, compromise, kindness. The banter between Nolie and Chase is so fun to read. Adorable Michalynn says things that make you laugh out loud. Kids say the darndest things. Great characters! Great story! I could relocate to this small town.
