[Siren Classic ManLove: Erotic Alternative Paranormal Romance, M/M, vampires, shape-shifters, food play, sex toys, HEA]

The worst thing for Darius to do when putting his life back together is to desire his son's best friend. Darius just wants everything to get back to normal and is looking forward to spending break with his son. The last thing he expects is the beauty raiding his fridge or sparks to fly.

Skyler's young but he's slept with enough men to know exactly what he wants, and it's the dream man right in front of him. Except the older god of a vampire won't touch him no matter what he does!

When a turn of events has them living together for the summer, Darius is going crazy with his teasing. But when he finally gives in to temptation, Skyler isn't the only one left with bite marks on him, and Darius is left brokenhearted.

Will Skyler be able to keep his wet nose where he wants it, or did he just lose everything because of a mistake he didn't make?

Note: This book is written in first-person point of view.

I'm happy to see the end of this series, and though I enjoyed reading it, I can honestly say I will not be coming back for more.

I fell in love with Ms Flynn's resistant omegas, really loved the story line and the background plot. Unfortunately I can't say the same for the Mated at midnight or Unmated at midnight series. There has been one or two that I really enjoyed and felt that in the future I might read them again, but as a whole the series has left me thinking that this might be the last time I actually go looking for her books.

This story, ending the series, left me wondering why I even started it. I'm still not sure, apart from the entertainment of taking myself into a bubble and reading to just take a break, the story left me with nothing and to be honest there is really nothing memorable there

The drama, silly drama.
I really don't know why I keep reading this series.

I had no problem with the 'age' gap and that Darius had hots for son's best buddy, seeing as paranormals have extremely long lives. Age, once maturity is reached really isn't a big issue.

So with that, this is awkward but since Skyler is in fact so 'young' he really doesn't present as a mature adult regardless of age. And frankly the 'use me, let me be your slut' was boring and not even close to being sexy. The pair of them in total just felt awkward.. and let's not get started on their epic fight and partner treatment.

I don't really mind the age difference but I was peeved by Darius using Skyler as a possession/slave... and he didn't even realize he was doing it until Skyler left him.

Possibly my least favorite books out of these. I didn't mind that it was his son's friend. I did mind how much the friend threw himself at the dad at the beginning of the book. The fight and reason for it was boring to me. There was no way I think he would have been able to hurt the love of his life like he was, even if he thought he'd been lied to.

Fangs and a Wet Nose is the eighth of the Unmated At Midnight Series. I really like reading these books as it makes me forget the realities of life. Sure there are angsts galore and some funny moments, some ridiculous and most improbable, but that is my point, this is why I like reading these books.

Here we have a much older vampire in Darius and contrary to popular myth and arcs of this type, no, he is not a secret billionaire. Instead we have a hard working vampire who can be victimized by economy just like any regular human and he does tend to scrimp and save and make sure to keep working. He has in his son, his hopes and his happiness. This son he cannot do without and cannot disappoint. Imagine his confusion when he falls hard for Skyler, his son's roommate and best friend who his son is also crushing on. Of course, he decides to not do anything with the attraction but it is not helping that Skyler is quite open in his gorgeousness and fabulousness tempting him no end.

As plots go, we can all predict that Skyler gets his man and Darius gets to the point of older-man angsts. Predictable again are the usual tensions expected in this formula. So far so good.

Then...

This is very difficult to rate as I am torn between rating it really low and rating it as so-so. Thing is, I found the first 60%-70% of the book really good, however, it soon crashed and burned. The crashing and the burning took me by surprise as it was neither expected nor predicted. I thought things were alright between Skyler and Darius despite the obvious older-man-younger-man angsts expected. Then that surprising twist just came out of nowhere and before I knew it, my liking for Darius fell to degrees to the point where I could no longer reconcile his character as the "leading man." After that twist, there was no recovery for me when it came to him and I really hated him and the outcome - despite it being an HEA.

I wish this could have ended better. I was hoping Skyler would get someone better. This is the turn of events that I do not like nor want to face again. So yes, this is difficult but I must rate and it is quite low. Terribly disappointed. Hopefully the next installment is happier.

Fangs and a Wet Nose [Unmated at Midnight]

This was just as good as the rest wish there was more but there isn't and I'm sad but I was great series and down the line I will probably read it again.....

Eh. No thanks. Sorry, but this one didn't do it for me :(It kind of skeeved me out. A 300+ year old man with a 21 year old? Yeah, cause that's not weird. Let's throw in he's the best friend of his son. Who had a crush on said 21 year old. EEK!!! Talk about weird.

Why did Skyler like Darius so much? I didn't understand the insta-attraction.
