Sneeze, Big Bear, Sneeze! Maureen Wright , Will Hillenbrand

It's autumn, and Big Bear thinks that his sneezes are causing the leaves and the apples to fall from the trees and the geese to fly away... until the wind convinces him otherwise. Cozy illustrations rendered in pencil and mixed media add warmth and humor to a story that children will love.

Kathryn says

Poor Big Bear--every time he sneezes, he thinks he causes something bad to happen (leaves falling off trees, apples falling to the ground) and he doesn't seem to understand when the Autumn Wind tries to explain that it is she who is blowing all these things about, and for good reason given the season. But, Bear keeps sneezing and misunderstanding and finally Autumn Wind has enough.

I would have liked this one so much better if the autumn wind had seemed a little more friendly and hadn't lost her temper! The story was adorable for the first 2/3 of the story, but the ending left kind of a sour aftertaste.

Barbara Barabas says

Cute children's book!

Another great book in the Big Bear series! Each one teaches a lesson in such a fun way to preschoolers!

Nanci Booher says

I adored this book. I have enjoyed all of the Big Bear books I have read, but this one is about fall, which is my favorite season. This rhyming book has Bear sneezing throughout. He thinks he is responsible for the leaves falling, the apples falling and does his best to return these things back to the trees. Wind tells him it isn't so but Bear doesn't understand. I think this is my favorite Bear book so far!

Samantha says

This is such a wonderful book! It's my daughters new favorite story.

Miss Sarah says

preschool age. About a bear going through the forest sneezing and when he does leaves or apples fall and other things happen. He feels bad these things are happening but the wind keep trying to tell him it's her preparing the world for fall but he just won't listen What happens when Bear does listen?

Billandevie says

This has become a new favorite. I love the rhyming text that flows so beautifully allowing young readers to help "read" the story. I also love the repeating of "Wind, it wasn't you-the leaves fell down when I sneezed ACHOO!" Which allows young readers to see that word repeated and help read it each time it repeats. I have used this all fall in my storytimes as well as in our home with our 2 year old granddaughter and it is loved by all!

I love big bear

I love this book and reading it out loud to my daughter.
She always has me read it to her twice.

Dolly says

This is an entertaining, rhyming tale about the wind's effects during Fall. Bear thinks that his sneezes make the leaves and apples fall from the trees and the geese fly off, but it's the wind that makes it all happen. The illustrations are entertaining, although the wind is a bit scary-looking on a few of the pages. We enjoyed reading this story together.

Becky Barnett says

I got this book on my Kindle for a bedtime story for my 4 year old daughter. It is a quick read and very enjoyable. We giggled a few times with how silly the bear was being. My daughter loved the pictures and the story of how autumn starts and she said that Big Bear is super silly. This book was the perfect length for a bedtime story and just a fun book.

Melissa says

Hillenbrand's illustrations lift up the text and the okay ending. My favorites are the apples piled back on the tree branch, and the geese exploding into flight.

Heidi-Marie says

I love the illustrations in this. The story had promise, but the text didn't quite work. Some of the rhythm was off. And some things didn't flow well from page to page. Plus, the ending seemed a bit, um, mean? Not sure how to put it, but I didn't really like it. Won't work for my fall storytime theme, but I can keep it on display.

3 stars only because I like the illustrations of the bear and bunny.

Mary says

I'm already fond of Big Bear and his bad hearing, and his little bunny friend, so I enjoyed this one. I think it would be fun to read to a little one.

First Line: "The wind whipped through the autumn woods and swirled to the spot where Big Bear stood."

Sam Bloom says

Cute book with excellent work from Will Hillenbrand, of course... the rhyming text is a bit rough at times, but overall this is a nice little story.

Angelina Kerner says

This is a beautifully illustrated short book for children with a great message about well sneezing and the season of fall. It's a little different from "Book Review: Sleep, Big Bear, Sleep!" but still is fun.

Parents can try counting leaves, apples, and geese with their young ones and have a laugh while doing it. A mood raiser.
