Emma says

This book is an old favourite of mine. I do not know how many times I have read it. It is the classic tale of the boy who finds a baby in the cabbage patch and decides to raise it...but soon the gloss wears off and the reality of child-rearing kicks in. A truly funny yet clever book.

Parin says

The Cabbage Patch Fib is written by Paul Jennings it is a book about a family.

I decided to read it because it is a short and easy story book.

The thing I like about this book is that the story is very fun.

The thing I don't like about this book is it have a boring ending.

I learn nothing from this book.

'I watched as Chris put the baby on the ground and started to creep off."What are you doing?"I shouted."You can't go off and leave it."

I would recommend this book to my friend.

Rowena says

Reading to Room 3 - Year 3-4. They loved it and want me to read the next one. It seems to matter not that there are references to Cabbage Patch dolls that were a thing in the 80's but no longer. In fact, when I described them, the children said that their mothers had such dolls and indeed their teacher had one. Cabbage Patch War here we come.

I don't remember a lot about this one, beyond the fact that I definitely read it as a kid.

Louise (A Strong Belief in Wicker) says

An interesting book. Originally published in 1988, after the mayhem of the Cabbage Patch Kids hysteria of the early 80s. A busy father of six wants to have a serious dinner time conversation, so after Doctor Who, he turns the tele off. 8 year old Chris has a question- ""Where do babies come from?"". Dad tells him and that night Chris goes searching the cabbage patch for a baby. Trouble starts when he finds a green baby, who stops breathing and turns purple whenever Chris puts him down or gives him to someone else. My son's year 4 teacher read this to his class. It seems a surprising choice for a class room read, although my son didn't come home with burning questions about where babies really come from.

Sally says

Loved that baby, who'd hold its breath to turn purple! Was this an episode of Round the Twist too, or a stand-alone? Because I distinctly remember watching it.
