The Nurse's Baby Secret

This was take of two people who were raised so differently. One who's parents marred because of an unplanned pregnancy. Who reminded that he was the reason. One who's father died at an early age and her mother having to work so much. Now she is pregnant with his child. And he broke up with her and moved away. What happens next when he finds out is the story. It's about how one learns that they matter to others, including a child. How to let go of the past to be able to grow.

He winced again. "You would be better off if you hated me"
She took a deep breath. "I thought so, but I was wrong."

"How so?"

"Because you're basically a good guy. Just because you didn't want the same things from our relationship that I did doesn't make you less of a good guy. It just makes you not the guy for me. "

I enjoyed the book. It feels different from a typical HP writing. Others may raise some questions about the hero, but I liked him and I get it why he was acting like that. If someone has that kind of parents then no one needs an enemy to destroy the life. I liked the headstrong heroine also. There were some little cute moments that I enjoyed very much. So overall it was good.
