Spencer says

Another fantastic issue, I really feel that Charles Soule is a fan and wants to give other fans what we actually want. This series is by far the best in the new canon and I eagerly await each new issue!

Brandon St Mark says

Really cool issue, I liked the dark side characters in the red robes and getting to see more of the Inquisitors.

Steven Shinder says

During the Burning Seas arc, I thought it was odd that the Jedi Master shown was someone with whom we would not be familiar. In hindsight, though, it shows how much bigger the Jedi Order is. Here, I was pleasantly surprised by the appearance of Eeth Koth. I'd always assumed that he died during the Clone Wars, hence why he's not on the Council during Revenge of the Sith. Turns out he was kicked off, probably for pursuing romance. His story is interesting to compare to that of Anakin/Vader. A list of Order 66 survivors also raises some questions. First off, another pleasant surprise was that Coleman Kcaj survived. He's a Jedi Council member in Revenge of the Sith whose fate was never disclosed, and I am curious whether he may pop up either in this series or the upcoming video game Star Wars Jedi: Fallen Order. The other surprising name is Oppo Rancisis, who is absent from the Council by the time of Revenge of the Sith but apparently did not die during the war as he did in Legends. I am very excited to see what ends up happening. I also like how the cover of this is an allusion to a poster for the first Star Wars movie.

Etienne says

Not the strongest storyline but I'm quite trouble about what Vader intend to do with the baby! Good action and in the end a good comic. Of all the series I follow this one is definitely in m top 3!
