spoiler-ish; from beginning

Kaleb had met Annie long before he'd ever known Zach. Kaleb hadn't been able to free himself then, but he had been able to help Annie, had used his vast telekinetic strength to lift the train compartment off her crushed leg so that she could be rescued. And she hadn't forgotten.

Not only had she remembered, she'd held the memory close enough that her baby's name was Rowan Kaleb Quinn. Kaleb wasn't quite sure how he felt about that. It wasn't the use of his name that concerned him. It was the impact the connection would have on an innocent child's life.

This was such a short cute little one shot of absolute cuteness :)

Kaleb, Sahara and little Rowan Kaleb Quinn (the child of the girl Kaleb saves when he was younger). Gosh the way things have changed from the first book to now is insane!!! Love every single little bit of this series. Nalini has "super powers" ;)

A lovely little story from the newsletter. It was nice to have a catch-up with Zach and Annie; their story remains my favorite of all the novellas. Oh, and Kaleb and Sahara!

I'm surprised to see so many low ratings, as it was a freebie...how can some downrate a gift from an author? So few do this anymore.

Monique says

So adorable! I love Kaleb's connection to Rowan.

Sophia says

Getting a follow up scene or two with Kaleb and Sahara and Zach and Annie. Kaleb and Sahara bring a baby gift to celebrate his little name sake. Sweet and cute!

I was very confused at first because I had no idea who this Rowan character was. I even went through my Allegiance of Honor Honor of Allegiance notes to see if he was a newly introduced character who'd maybe get his own book in the Psy-Changeling Trinity spin-off and nothing. And then Nalini mentioned in her August newsletter that she wrote this story because of high demand by the fandom and I was like.....who on earth is this why do I always forget 83% of male characters, even in my favourite series.

Anyway: turns out he's Zach and Annie's baby and this story builds on the time that Kaleb saved Annie, which I did expect to be a highly requested story. In reality, it's about Kaleb and Sahara trying to find a fitting baby present for Rowan, because they both realise how important it is and that it needs to mean something, but are both also really hopeless at it. And to be really accurate: it's actually Sahara coming up with ideas while Kaleb plays with her hair -- because he supposedly "realised he'd been bested" Imao my man you didn't even try you argued for literally five seconds -- and thinks about the best parts of their relationship, and Nalini reaffirming that these two are still wildly in love, as if that ever was in doubt, ha. Added bonus: pupcub revelations!

Sarah says

Another lovely little slice of life, this time we get to catch up with Kaleb and Sahara as they pick out a present for little Rowan (Zach and Annie's baby). Annie has considered Kaleb family since he saved her life when they were both children but Kaleb still has a hard time understanding emotional connections to anyone but Sahara so he's learning new things all the time!

4 stars.

I like how Nalini Singh has managed to humanise Kaleb. Not sure I really appreciate the gift myself though... I think I'd prefer something a bit more substantial, especially since it's from Kaleb... hahaha!

Coral says

I wouldn't even consider it a short story, more like only 2 scenes. But its a must read for those who love Kaleb. I've been waiting for this scene and imagining it tons of time ever since I read Allegiance of Honor. While it wasn't as dramatic as I had hope, I love how the story stays true to Kaleb's character.

Kitlina says

OMG I missed Kaleb and Sahara so much. I loved this little snippet. Rowan will be so adored growing up.

Kaleb Krychek helping Sahara choose a present for baby Rowan!

I miss Camila! Who else am I going to cry with about this?

Cute little Psy story. I hope Nalini writes more of these. I'll always read

A snippet about the "official" meeting of Rowan.

Kaleb feels utterly lost in this unexpected new role. =D

Wild_irish_rose says

I love these shorts and how Nalini Singh maintains the personalities of the characters. A great slice of life.

Darcy says

This one was very sweet. Loved that even though Kaleb wasn't sure about what a baby needs for a gift, he and Saraha came up with the perfect present and showed him that his connection will always be there.
