Wendy Darling says

My poor heart has never felt this way after finishing a series; I had no idea it was possible to feel such tempered happiness as well as such overwhelming grief for everyone involved. Many of the things I thought might happen, did--and yet it doesn't change my fierce love and admiration for the way everything unfolded.

THIS is how a love triangle should be written, in a way that preserves the honor of everyone involved. There isn't another series out there that has ever managed to handle one with such love and kindness and respect.

Ugh, that epilogue. Still sobbing uncontrollably. I don't know how to stop! My puny human heart wasn't meant to process such epic love stories.

P.S. If you're considering reading the Infernal Devices series, I wrote a real review for Clockwork Prince here, which is book #2. It contains no spoilers, even if you haven't read the first book.

Sasha Alsberg says

beautiful, stunning, heartbreaking and purely a life changing book. READ READ READ <3 ave atque vale The Infernal Devices. Will, Jem, and Tessa... it was an honor..:)

Dorreh says

I'm going to curl into a corner and cry now, that was beautiful ???

Which is exactly what i did for the first two days after reading this book, then i got off the ground and began trying to draw what I imagined Tessa would look like. Needless to say it was not a very satisfying coping mechanism, but it worked to a certain extent.

This book was everything a person could want in a book, interesting, fast paced, action filled, and most of all emotionally wrecking.

Lets talk characters, Will, Will, Will, im in love with Will!!!! I think i become so emotionally invested in fictional characters, i'm starting to lose my ability to connect with real life human beings. Not complaining though, TBH. James was a sweetheart, but im always the bad boy lover. All the side characters were purely lovable, i think i shipped Cecy and Gabriel so much, while giggling over Gideon and Sophie. oh and charlotte and henry!!!!!!!!!!!! basically lets just name everyone in the book one by one and then ill be satisfied!!!!!!

I just wish to complain a little about Tessa's absolute lack of self competence. I mean if the intention was for to be an absolute damsel in distress, she nailed it. Which frankly was a little irritating given that I'm very strongly attached to strong female characters. But given how much i loved this book im willing to forgive it.

I was a little again irritated with the fact that the last few chapters of this book dragged on a bit, but when the prologue finally arrived i was bent over literally suffering from tachycardia from how emotionally distraught the book made me. I cried and laughed, and felt my heart squeeze in and over itself so many times i was physically breathless once it was over!

THERE IS A SPINOFF SERIES FOR THEIR CHILDREN COMING IN 2019!!!!!!!!!!!! HOW IN THE NAME OF THE GOOD LORD AM I SUPPOSED TO WAIT THAT LONG!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

Elise (TheBookishActress) says

here's a song called I'm ready to die strums guitar

In my reviews of Clockwork Angel and Clockwork Prince, I talked a lot about of the things I loved so much within this series. But you know what? I cannot wait to do it all again. This series took an annoyingly large emotional tole on me and my fragile emotions, and it was kind of trashy, but also it made me cry, like, a lot, and I qualify that as a quality piece of media.

I'm registering my honest opinion that fun trash is fantastic if you can just get me invested in the characters and feeling the aesthetic. I am really, really, really invested in the ridiculously-compelling-even-when-they're-annoying characters. I am really feeling the creepy aesthetic and I am really enjoying the creep factor.

"I have come to understand something about novels. They're not true."

Oh my god, I'm so sorry if this is like... an unpopular opinion or something, but I love Tessa so much. She's such a quintessential female character that got ignored because Hot Guys and she deserves better, and if I see any Tessa Gray hate on my timeline I will throw several hands. I fucking love Tessa and she has never done a single thing wrong in her life. She is simultaneously a gentle soul and one of the most savage people in the world and I absolutely adore her.

I still love and would die for Jem; he's a very pure and good soul. He made a lot of really dumb decisions in this book, and I am mostly not annoyed by them because they're in character for his stubborn personality.

Also, Will is an annoying person, but he's my annoying person. Actually, guys, I really love Will, which "me after book one" would not have classed as something in my future. His development in this book especially is so good, and I trust him, and I love him.

LET'S TALK SIDE CHARACTERS.

✓Honestly, don't kill me for this, but Cecily is... I have mixed feelings?

✓Like, she's cool, just vaguely thrown in the fucking final book of a series, and reads kind of like the girl version of Will, but we've still only known her for one book, and I love that finding-my-place conflict but she's just taken over by a romance plot that is cute but also out of nowhere, and I don't find her compelling enough to want 20% of the book to be her chapters. I... still like her and it's fine

✓I... actually really like Gabriel. I love that am-I-my-family conflict, I'd die for it, so jot that down. although I'll admit me liking him was hashtag shocking

✓I really like Gideon too. less shocking

✓I'm going to start a Sophie stan club and none of you can stop me, I love my wife who can't figure out her worth but is really really trying!!

- ✓I'm actually still kind of sad Jessamine didn't get More
- ✓Who else would willingly die for Charlotte Branwell, the mom friend who is a total disaster at it because she's like, ten years older than all of the people she's caring for
- ✓Henry is a good man and a disaster and I love him but how is he still alive
- ✓everyone got fucking paired off in this book and I want to be mad about it but god damn all of it was cute, all these straight people are so cute tf
- ✓although I do wish to register my honest opinion that this series has a deeply bi vibe and as such, no character within is truly straight

So, all joking aside, here's my general thought: all of the side characters in this series are really endearing and intriguing and I find them all so shockingly likable, which never happens.

Soooooooooooo let's finally talk about the subtextual polyamory. Aka I had to use that line somewhere, aka the reason I like this series so damn much, aka the ot3 of my damn dreams. But I really think all of the characters just... complement each other really well. Jem is more of a sunshine being, and he pulls that out in Tessa, and Will is more forty pounds of sarcasm in a trenchcoat, and Tessa is so much more savage around him, and I find that so endearing and adorable, and god I just want them all to be together.

I am not joking when I say I don't ship any of the three arms of this triangle individually like, nearly enough to love this series all on its own. [I actually like both of the Jem ships more than Will & Tessa, which is ironic because that's the ship that's being pushed?] Nope. They're just... all in love, and it's beautiful.

Also, Jem leans against chairs when Will is sitting in them and it's so adorable and also, Will threw his hands into the fire for like, one thing for Jem, and wow but people keep burning their hands for people they love.

and now for some SPOILERY THOUGHTS: um, so everyone has been telling me I was going to cry reading this, and, uh, I did. Here are the moments I cried at! (view spoiler) Also, I think I might have gotten myself into tears of laughter over several funny moments. I was howling.

"I believe that might be qualified as resistance," Will said, "you know, eating one's son in law."

Oh, and just before we go, let me mention that this is... a strangely hilarious book considering how fucking sad it made me. That scene where Gideon and Gabriel write a letter about Charlotte in chapter six? That was literally the funniest thing I have ever read in my entire life. It was the source of all my non-awful tears in this godforsaken book.

Anyway. I yelled a lot in this review, but bottom line: yes, this was really good, yes, I loved it, yes, I cried, no, I'm not going to give you my answer on the team Jem vs. team Will thing, highly recommended, obviously.

Oh how I love Jem... Tessa had better choose Jem!! Or I may not read another Cassandra Clare book again. (Okay, that is a lie. And I admit it. I will always read Ms. Clare's books, no matter what.) Has anyone noticed how Tessa and Will would be too similar to Clary and Jace? If Tessa's with Will, I might have to assume Clare can't write about different romances. (I won't. Because it is clear that she can write about versatile romances.)

Besides, I love Jem <33

THE INFERNAL DEVICES ARE WITHOUT PITY.
THE INFERNAL DEVICES ARE WITHOUT REGRET.
THE INFERNAL DEVICES ARE WITHOUT NUMBER.

THE INFERNAL DEVICES WILL NEVER STOP COMING.

The final battle begins...

Like a clock without cogs, Mortmain's master plan is missing its key component: Tessa. Without her, he cannot use his army of automatons, to destroy the Shadowhunters. He cannot exact his revenge.

Secrets will unravel...

As Tessa's nuptials quickly approach, she clings to the moments of happiness she finds with Jem - refusing to dwell on his inevitable death, Will's broken heart and her own. But there are bigger things at stake than hearts. The secrets behind Tessa's creation may hold all their lives in the balance. What is she and how did she come to be?

Only Mortmain holds the answers.

The Infernal Devices will rise...

...But who will stop them?

Immediate reaction:

By the Angel!

I. Just. Died.

I have been overwhelmed with a sea of emotions. I have nothing left - I have laughed, gasped, screeched, cried, sobbed, sobbed some more and then 'aww'd a little more after that.

This is all too much.

Cassie is a genius.

When I regain my emotions - and am mentally stable once more - I will sit down and type up a scintillating review. :)

My 'before reading' review:

Ok - I can see how the plot will roll out:

- Will and Tessa 'i love you but I don't and let's have paragraphs describing our heart-tearing eye contact' tension
- Jem and Tessa cute 'omg we're engaged but you're dying' stuff
- Cecily 'i think i love Jem but shit he's engaged' thoughts
- Sophie and Gideon 'we're in love and who cares about the others' moments
- Gabriel 'God I'm such a loner' mini-chapters
- Jessamine's 'wallowing in a cell without makeup' moments
- Henry and Charlotte's 'we're having a baby!' times

MY HEART HURTS. I'VE NEVER FELT THIS BROKEN OVER A BOOK BEFORE.

Words truly cannot express the greatness of this art and perfection. The Infernal Devices certainly became one of my favorite series of ALL TIME. I can't believe it's actually over. And that epilogue. Cassandra Clare can seriously write one heck of an epilogue no matter how painful they could be!

The Infernal Devices has been one wild ride right from the very first page of Clockwork Angel. I binge read all three books and I have absolutely no regrets other than the fact that I loathe myself for not reading these books any sooner. Now that I finally completed this prequel series, I can say with utmost confidence that The Infernal Devices is far more superior compared to The Mortal Instruments.

The feelings I had while reading first three books of The Mortal Instruments doesn't even come close to the feelings I had while reading this whole series. The Infernal Devices was, hands down, just all around better. The characters were better. The plot was better. Even Cassandra's writing was better. I had no major complaints whatsoever while reading The Infernal Devices.

The greatest thing about this series was not the action, not the romance, but the bond between Jem and Will. Although I am a Wessa shipper to the max, I am a Jem and Will shipper first. Their parabatai bond and friendship was just so touching with every page turned. I bawled over Jem and Will's love for each other more than I ever bawled over the romance between Jem and Tessa or Tessa and Will. Though it is true when people say that the love triangle in this series is like no other, I fiercely believe that Jem and Will's bond overpowers that of the romance in The Infernal Devices. I have not read a friendship as fierce and loyal as Jem and Will's. They made this series the masterpiece that it was.

I'm glad everybody was able to have the happy ending that they all deserved, just as I had hoped for.

My heart aches just knowing that this series is over! I'm afraid to continue on with the rest of The Mortal Instruments because I just don't think it will fill the void that The Infernal Devices has left. This series has truly become near and dear to my heart.

Tessa reached to brush the damp hair from his forehead. He leaned into her touch, his eyes closing. "Jem—have you ever—" She hesitated. "Have you ever thought of ways to prolong your life that are not a cure for the drug?"

At that his eyelids flew open. "What do you mean?"

She thought of Will, on the floor of the attic, choking on holy water. "Becoming a vampire. You would live forever—"

He scrambled upright against the pillows of the bed. "Tessa, no. Don't—you can't think that way."

"Is the thought of becoming a Downworlder truly so horrible to you?"

"Tessa ..." He exhaled slowly. "I am a Shadowhunter. Nephilim. Like my parents before me. It is the heritage I claim, just as I claim my mother's heritage as part of myself. It does not mean I hate my father. But I honor the gift they gave me, the blood of the Angel, the trust placed in me, the vows I have taken. Nor, I think, would I make a very good vampire. [redacted for spoilers] I would no longer be Will's parabatai, no longer be welcome in the Institute. No, Tessa. I would rather die and be reborn and see the sun again, than live to the end of the world without daylight."

"A Silent Brother, then," she said.

His eyes softened slightly. "The path of Silent Brotherhood is not open to me."

Will's eyes met Tessa's as she came closer, almost tripping again over the torn hem of her gown. For a moment, they were in perfect understanding. Jem was what they could still look each other straight in the eye about. On the topic of Jem, they were both fierce and unyielding. Tessa saw Will's hand tighten on Jem's sleeve. "She's here," he said.

Jem's eyes opened slowly. Tessa fought to keep the look of shock from her face. His pupils were blown out, his irises a thin ring of silver around the black. "Ni shou shang le ma, qin ai de?" he whispered. "Are you hurt, my love?"

OMG What happened to Jem?!?! CRIES!

"Wo wei ni xie de," he said, as he raised the violin to his left shoulder, tucking it under his chin. He had told her many violinists used a shoulder rest, but he did not: there was a slight mark on the side of his throat, like a permanent bruise, where the violin rested.

"You — made something for me?" Tessa asked.

"I wrote something for you," he corrected, with a smile, and began to play.

"Though Will was saying earlier," Tessa added, "that heroes all come to bad ends, and he could not imagine why anyone would want to be one, anyway."

"Ah." Jem's hand squeezed hers briefly, and then let it go. "Well, Will is looking at it from the hero's viewpoint, isn't he? But as for the rest of us, it's an easy answer."

“Is it?”

“Of course.” His voice was almost a whisper now. “Heroes endure because we need them. Not for their own sakes. If Will ...”

“You do not want to help us,” Will said to Magnus. “You do not want to position yourself as an enemy of Mortmain’s.”

“Well, can you blame him?” Woolsey rose in a whirl of yellow silk. “What could you possibly have to offer that would make the risk worth it to him?”

“I will give you anything,” said Tessa in a low voice that Will felt in his bones. “Anything at all, if you can help us help Jem.”

Magnus gripped a handful of his black hair. “God, the two of you. I can make inquiries. Track down some of the more unusual shipping routes. Old Molly —”

“I’ve been to her,” Will said. “Something’s frightened her so badly she won’t even crawl out of her grave.”

Woolsey snorted. “And that doesn’t tell you anything, little Shadowhunter? Is it really worth all this, just to stretch your friend’s life out another few months, another year? He will die anyway. And the sooner he dies, the sooner you can have his fiancée, the one you’re in love with.” He cut his amused gaze toward Tessa. “Really you ought to be counting down the days till he expires with great eagerness.”

Who is this Woolsey douchebag and where is he so I can shove my foot up his ass?!

Swoon for Jem

This review is also on Living for the Books

I can't believe it's over. This series has been one of my favorites for the past couple years and it's always been in the back of my mind. So now that it's over I'm not sure what to do with myself. Guess I'll just have to read some more books.

I'm going to try to make this as spoiler free as possible.

"You know that feeling," she said, "when you are reading a book, and you know that it is going to be a tragedy; you can feel the cold and darkness coming, see the net drawing close around the characters who live and breathe on the pages. But you are tied to the story as if being dragged behind a carriage, and you cannot let go or turn the course aside."

That quote from the book basically sums up my feelings while I was reading. There was no way this book could have ended without some sort of heartbreak. And believe me the ending was so heartbreaking but also so sweet.

The characters were absolutely amazing and so realistic. I cared about all of them (which is very rare since I'm kind of picky about the characters I like). But all of them were unique and had their own story that made them who they were. After risking so much, I was so glad that most of them got their happy endings.

The love triangle in this book is how a love triangle should be written. Many books have love triangles but most of them are nothing like the Will-Tessa-Jem love triangle. I actually liked both guys in the love triangle (I ship Will and Tessa but I still love Jem). Loving both guys is just a recipe for heartbreak.

The relationships between all the characters was also another part of the book that I love. Will and Jem's friendship made them like brothers and it was so heartbreaking when Will or Jem would think of when they were children or the adventures they had. I sobbed whenever Will thought of the first time he met Jem.

Even though Tessa can't fight like the Shadowhunters she's still powerful in her own way. I loved how she was so determined and willing to give anything to protect the people that she loves. I'm definitely going to miss her as a main character.

Clockwork Princess was a much darker read than the other two books in the series. Despite that, the book had me laughing. Not as often as in the other books but the little bits of humor were perfectly timed. The sarcasm in all of Cassandra Clare's books never fails to make me laugh.

The ending was actually very satisfying even though I was crying so much I couldn't even read the page. I totally called who Brother Zachariah was but I never would have guessed the twist at the very end of the book. When you read this book I highly recommend keeping a box of tissues close by just so you're prepared.

Now I must say goodbye to one of my favorite series and the characters I have come to love.

Before reading

?????5 BEST I HAVE EVEN GIVEN STARS!?????

Clockwork Angel Review!
Clockwork Prince Review!

I have finished this book for about 3 hours ago and I still can't believe the series is over. This pure perfection, this amazing thrilling story, this everything. I have been so caught up with this series these past two weeks and I don't want this to end. I consider myself a fool for not reading this before, for listening to people who told me to not even bother to try this. I can't imagine how can people dislike this, with its perfectly plot and characters and the awesome writing. At least show respect for this great, beyond good novel.

“You endure what is unbearable, and you bear it. That is all.”

This is my favorite series of 2014, maybe my all time favorite. I know I will read other awesome books, books I will love and cheer but this one, the whole series actually, will always have a space in my colossal vitality of imagination.

“Tessa craned her head back to look at Will. “You know that feeling,” she said, “when you are reading a book, and you know that it is going to be a tragedy; you can feel the cold and darkness coming, see the net drawing tight around the characters who live and breathe on the pages. But you are tied to the story as if being dragged behind a carriage and you cannot let go or turn the course aside.” His blue eyes were dark with understanding — of course Will would understand — and she hurried on. “I feel now as if the same is happening, only not to characters on a page but to my own beloved friends and companions. I do not want to sit by while tragedy comes for us. I would turn it aside, only I struggle to discover how that might be done.”

“You fear for Jem,” Will said.

“Yes,” she said. “And I fear for you, too.”

“No,” Will said, hoarsely. “Don’t waste that on me, Tess.”

The writing style is perfect. This series is written in third person, but yet I couldn't help but admire the writing. The greatness lies in the way author has collided the quotes of classics with the chapters, the time the book is written with the way they speak, the manners and habits with the characters' personality. Everything clings perfectly.

“Sometimes one must choose whether to be kind or honorable,” he said. “Sometimes one cannot be both.”

This series has made me not just respect, but admire poetry. Also I dig the series so much because the characters talk books, in their unique ways, talk books as they were part of their lives, talk books as they are a treasure worth having.

“I am catastrophically in love with you.”

Clockwork Princess is a beautiful, yet thrilling sequel with everything in it. The characters are fully developed and it reflects the plot and the lives, intentions, desires and dreams of characters. Also you can feel and see them being free and finally choosing what they truly want, what they truly are.

“It has been the privilege and the honor of my life to know you.”

And as the other books, this one contains the sense of humor I likely want to read in novels. It comes so natural and freely, especially with Will, he is the master of jokes.

“And now I need you to do for me what I cannot do for myself. For you to be my eyes when I do not have them. For you to be my hands when I cannot use my own. For you to be my heart when mine is done beating.”

I can't part this book. I enjoyed every word and chapter. The beginning was thrilling because the second book ended with a cliff, the middle also exciting because something happens and you can't help but read more and more, and the ending because it's perfection. The best ending ever written. And I am talking about the epilogue.

“Do not seek revenge and call it justice.”

So the epilogue. I don't want to spoil anything but this is the best epilogue ever written. I read it in one breath. It's the most emotional part of the whole series and it's the reality of the characters, the ones we grew up to love and respect.

“Most people are lucky to have even one great love in their life. You have found two.”

The story continues with the institute and the Cecily arrival. With the Magister gone who knows where with his intentions, the shadowhunters are faced with a lot of problems they don't have the knowledge to fix. Tessa, now as Jem's fiancée is still trying to know herself, and her heart. Will she, being the last piece in the Magister's evil plan, save the Institute and her family there or be their destruction?

“There are so many worse things than death. Not to be loved or not to be able to love: that is worse.”

I want to mention some of my favorite moments in this book (This contains spoilers so if you haven't read the book, skip this part)

I really liked when Will rides the horse up to the hills. I could visualize it with all the background, the horse running, the air pumping. It reminded me of some of my childhood animation movies and I dig those times so much.

“There is more to living than not dying.”

I also liked all the scene with Cecily, especially the one with her in the back of the worm. It was a badass move, and the whole scene was full of action and excitement.

“Atque in perpetuum, frater, ave atque vale,” he whispered. The words of the poem had never seemed so fitting: Forever and ever, my brother, hail and farewell.”

And of course the scene with Tessa turning into the angel and crushing the Magister. Beside chills ,it gave me lots of joy because the madman was finally dead.

“For this I would be damned forever. For this I would have given up everything.”

The characters

Tessa

Tessa is one of my favorite main characters. She is strong, determined and caring and sometimes I could see her sense of humor. She has developed so much and she has proved herself to be a faithful person. Also at her age she handles greatly the affections with pride and loyalty.

Will

Will has also all the great qualities a man should have, but what I liked about him was that he doesn't play the perfect innocent person. I must say the way he handled the situation with the curse was to be admired. Also the humor, even though I can't understand why he hates ducks!

James

Jem, as Will contains the best qualities a person could contain, and also because of that and the fact that he is dying and he perfectly handles that makes you idol this character.

Cecily

I was introduced to this character in the third book, but I truly like her. She is carefree and she talks without hesitations. Also she is one hell of a badass chick and the way she talks is so fun to read.

"At last, the wheel comes full circle"

I highly recommend this series to every reader out there. It's everything you wish to find in a book and gives you a new way to see the world. I personally hesitated to read this one but now I regret only one thing, that I haven't picked this one before. I learned so much from this and for that I am truly grateful.

"One does no question miracles, or complain that they are no constructed perfectly to one's liking."

Thank you Cassandra Clare, thank you!

Beth says

"Most people never find one great love in their life. You are lucky enough to have found two."

By the Angel! I'm an emotional wreck, I'll add to the bottom of the review when I you know STOP CRYING! I will never ever stop loving this series. My poor heart. That epilogue, just everything.

Oh. My. I remember this book being good. BUT the second time it was just wonderful. I can honestly say a book has never ever made me feel like this has. Another 5 Stars!

Completely spoiler free!

For the final book in The Infernal Devices series, I have never been so happy. Everything about this was perfect. I laughed, I cried, I cried some more, I had goosebumps, it just overall made me feel something!

Will, Jem and Tessa I just love these three so much, I feel like we've been on such a journey, so many ups and downs but we finally made it! How could three people who cared for one another so much cause one another so much pain? I KNOW RIGHT?! Okay firstly, I love the friendship between all three of them. The fact that Jem is always there for Will whether he is wrong or right. That Will is always there for his Parabatai if he is ill. There is so much love between them both that just makes something so special. I enjoyed that there was no jealousy between the three and that they all loved each other equally. "My Conscience" Will Whispered. "You are my conscience. You have ever been James Carstairs" Moving on, the relationship between Jem and Tessa and Will and Tessa. On my first read I was always Will, I still am. However I can now say I do have a soft spot in the shape of Jem. I realised how much he cares for Tessa and Will. I loved how he treated Tessa and always tried to do something special for her. Whereas Will he loves her fiercely and I wish we'd had the chance to see it a lot more! I need more of all three of them please.

Charlotte and Henry once again, such lovable characters, I'm still laughing about the middle name! Charlotte is the mother type, and I think a role needed to be set in this! I love how she is head strong and does what she believes is right. Henry is so supportive and I love his little quirks. I think the relationship between these two in this book is so much more than what it was. They both know how they truly feel and it is honestly so heartwarming reading about them both together. I can't stop picturing Henry as this man with ginger hair with explosions all around him! At times I felt so sorry for Charlotte, simply for the fact that it is very much a "mans world" however she is who she is and she stood her ground!

Gideon, Gabriel, Sophie and Cecy ahhhhhh. How do I keep this so I don't go into full on babble mode? Okay firstly I loved the pairings of these. The moment that Sophie realised about them Scones. I couldn't cope from laughing! I love how Gideon is the calm to the storm and is so reasoning and so gentle. Especially with Sophie. Sophie makes me slightly weak with how much I like her as a character! Gabriels relationship with Cecy was actually adorable, I couldn't remember whether or not I liked him. But yeah... I guess he's not so bad! There were so many funny moments with this group and I can't even begin to name them all. I don't think I've ever liked so many characters!

What I liked?

- I loved the relationship building between the Lightwormwoods, and how Will introduced Gabriel. It was always something that amused me throughout even when I was on the verge of tears.
- "Fathers a worm" I was howling with laughter for a good 10 minutes!
- The fact that Cecy knows exactly how to wind Will up, it just makes me laugh how he does it for everyone else, but when it's on him he just can't handle it!
- I adored that Magnus was in this way more than he previously was, the fact that Will treated him as an equal and thanked him. Magnus's response to that was just so adorable!
- Just the whole basis of the storytelling, it's just so beautiful!
- Charlotte and Henry's love for one another, I just love how they are so supportive of one another when in reality it doesn't seem like they are supported my others.
- When he finds her and confessed all!
- How evil Mortmain was! I always love to hate someone!
- SO MANY QUOTES, ALL OF THE SWOONING
- I'm sorry but that epilogue is one of my favourite things ever I cry and I cry each time. I don't know why I do it to myself. You get a peak into what has happened over the years, I couldn't even explain why. Well I could but you know... Spoilers! It honestly broke my heart (but in a lovely way)

What I didn't like?

- WHY IS IT ONLY 3 BOOKS, I NEED MORE WILL!

The Infernal Devices are without pity.
The Infernal Devices are without regret.
The Infernal Devices are without number.
The Infernal Devices will never stop coming

I'm sad that it's over until my next re-read, but I have loved every moment! I'm also sorry for my numerous updates, I just can't help myself when it comes to The Infernal Devices!

"Life is a book, and there are a thousand pages I have not yet read."

08.07.18 After thoughts of things I liked/picked up

- Seeing the back story of when Jem and Will first met
- I loved seeing a lot more of Gabriel and understanding why he is like he is, not only that but how he and Cecy interact
- Gideons protectiveness towards the people he cares for
- Gabriel and Gideons letters are HILARIOUS. Speaking of letters, I loved all of the letters throughout, we got to see a look in to how they corresponded and different perspectives from other characters.
- The yin fen fire moment ruined me!
- JEM WRITING FOR TESSA... my heart!
- The distractions from Jem for Will
- Will's interactions with Magnus, he calls him when he needs to talk, one helps the other, they treat each other as equals
- So many think I picked up, The necklace, the star birthmark and Cortana!
- Back stories, I say no more.
- Gabriel and Gideon can literally not hold their tongues and blurt everything out
- My Will... My Tessa
- So many people getting their just desserts :) :) :)
- The last fight, you know
- Charlotte is one of my favourite female characters, because of the time frame this was set in, she wasn't seen as an equal. To see her character grow from strength to strength and do what is right even though others thought she couldn't I just loved it
- Will reading to Tessa in a time of need
- Any mention of worms
- I've said it earlier, and I'll say it again. That epilogue. Destroyed for ever.

Hannah-Linn says

I officially died and went to heaven when I finally got this book in my hands.

And it was freaking amazing. Everything about this book was perfect, and it ended absolutely perfectly.

And it was SO. SAD.

OH DEAR JESUS. I couldn't handle the level of sadness.

Even so, still perfection.
