The Sinning Hour Elise Rome

She came from the alleyways, adorned by grime and soot...

Simon Astley has no reason to hire Miranda Post as his housemaid. She has no experience, no credible qualifications. She looks and smells better suited to the East End rookeries than to his West End town house. Worse yet, she reminds him of a soul-staining past he'd prefer to forget.

Unfortunately, she also becomes his fascination.

Physically scarred and lost to a life of poverty, Miranda has but one goal: survival. Although she distrusts her new employer's generosity, she is determined to save herself, to save her father, and to crawl her way out of despair.

Each wants nothing more than to continue their roles of master and housemaid. But one night, in one sinful hour, when everything changes, a sensual battle begins between the corrupt and the innocent, and to win both Simon and Miranda must lay at stake something neither can afford to lose: their hearts.

June 2014 update!!!!

I just heard the "amazing" news... this will be published in July 2014 !!!! Amazing news indeed! #icantwait

UPDATE: I just read the first chapter and...

If anyone's interested, first chapter is posted here. Can't wait to read more.

(5/30)

The book involves a nude painter? Well...that's just...

And what a lovely cover. A dazzling dress with pearls.
