stranger in her bed(1): so while this idea works in fiction its super creep in real life. how does joe keep getting into her apt....and why in the world does she believe his crazy curse story. overall not a bad story just a little out there for me the marrying kind(2): hallelujah! ive been trying to remember where i read this story for months..i totally thought it was a sandra brown book id read. i like star crossed lovers as much as the next girl but did they really have to be cheating with each other? other than that moral ick i really enjoyed the idea of a love that lasts that long even through so much satisfy me (4): definitely my favorite of the book. main character asia is an independent woman finally getting over the baggage her ex left her with( havent we all been there) and she and her friends decide to walk on the wild side with a dare. cameron is her perfect match hes tried and tried but she never lets him in untilhe overhears and makes use of the dare. makes for a pretty big fairly comical misunderstanding that ends well brass ring(4): this was my least fav i think. the story should have been action packed and kept me on my toes but both plot and characters fell flat for me. shawna was a little obnoxious and kinda childlike insisting things would go back to the way they were even though she as a dr shouldve known better. and parker was freaking bipolar pushing her away one minute and having sex with her the next. i liked the baby mama drama but everything else was kinda bleh
